Expanding Allocation to Private Assets. Why? How? And What's Next?

- The Big Picture are volatility, inflation, global geopolitical uncertainties in the public markets driving more Asian private clients to the private equity and debt markets, and what are key attractions of higher allocations to private assets compared to public markets?
- Which types of private clients in Asia are driving this trend, and looking ahead, what sort of allocations should HNW and UHNW investors be making to private assets as a percentage of their total portfolios?
- In the private equity market spanning from VC to pre-IPO funding, what are the key opportunities today and what are the key criteria investors need to consider?
- In the private debt markets spanning from senior to subordinated, trade finance and much more what types of deals are Asian clients buying into, and why?
- What about other private assets, for example real estate or alternatives?
- Do ESG and sustainability play a significant or growing role in private markets?
- What is the wealth management community doing to boost its private markets proposition and offerings?
