- The future of cities in the Covid era given reports that many have been emptying out in certain parts of the world, such as the US
- The rise and rise of digital nomadism

Health Passports

Robert Maciejewski
CEO
Swiss Insurance Partners
Based in Switzerland

- The complexities of health passports
- Moving forward, relatively unrestricted international travel will only be possible for holders of such passports,
- In a rapidly changing environment, what are the most recent developments, and what do they mean practically for globally mobile citizens and their advisors?

Longevity Migration

Kate Batz
Managing Partner
Longevity Capital
Based in San Francisco

- Longevity as a new political reality of the 21st century
- How Longevity will come to be seen as fundamental duty of governments – and right of citizens – and will be demanded by the electorate of most developed nations by the year 2030
- Unpacking what makes regions longevity progressive or regressive

Migration and Mobility trends– Southeast Asia

Curtis Chin
Senior Fellow - Asia
Milken Institute
Based in Singapore

- Southeast Asia in dire straits
- No significant resumption of safe, regional, international travel this next quarter
- Covid-19 has hit all nations, both rich and poor
- Hopes that ASEAN would be a key, central means to address Covid-19 among the 10 core nations of Southeast Asia have not come to fruition
- Vaccines will be critical, but so too will be strengthened capacity building, cooperation and communication

Migration and Mobility trends – Australasia

Oriel Morrison
Founder
Kaida Corp
Based in Australia

- Australia and New Zealand have been hugely successful in containing the spread of Covid-19, largely because doors to the island nations were slammed shut early in the pandemic.
- But both countries depend on immigration, trade, and global populations, which has seen their governments exploring new ways of opening up, including implementing vaccine passports and new and upgraded immigration policies aimed at attracting talent.
