

How do you deal with the New World of Inflation?

3.00pm

How do you deal with the New World of Inflation?

- What is the outlook for inflation in the major economies?
- What does that mean for rates and then for equities and fixed income in the major economies and currencies?
- Is inflation rising in the emerging economies around the world, or are they dancing to a different tune?
- How should Asia's wealthy private clients be adapting their portfolios and their mindsets to cope with inflation and all its permutations?
- Is gold still the only viable go-to alternative asset in face of significant and persistent inflation?
- What role should structured products play?
- Should investors be passing more of their portfolios to professional managers, for example to Discretionary management in face of this significantly different environment?
- What is the private bank and independent wealth community doing to help their clients in Asia?
