Thailand: An Update on the Country's Increasingly Dynamic Wealth Management Market

- How are asset managers and wealth managers evolving to engage the post-pandemic era?
- As HNW clients think more globally – does this benefit international players?
- What does client experience mean to you?
- Has demand for investment products stayed strong? And for what type of themes or strategies?
- What are some of the expectations that wealthy Thai clients have when it comes to wealth transfer?
- Are banks still the dominant wealth management players? Or are any new entrants making inroads?
- How are firms accelerating their digital transformation? Driving efficiency? Improving the advisory process? Being more proactive in communications with clients?
- What are the key regulatory changes of late, what should we anticipate, and what impact would these changes have?
- Who is forging ahead in Thailand's wealth market and why? Is it global PBs, or boutique international PBs, or domestic banks and firms, or the various JVs/partnerships? And why?
- How do competitors enhance their value propositions, their range of products, their advice and their service?
- What do the next-gens expect of their wealth management providers and why?
